Jail Physician Testifies Against Slayer of Miss Eva Chambers.

COMMISSION IS NAMED
Drs. King and Drewry Examine Prisoner After Conclusion of Testimony.

Roanoke, Va., March 4.—The taking of testimony in the case of Joshua E. Raines, who is now on trial in Salem for the killing of Miss Eva M. Chambers, a school teacher, on January 21, was concluded this morning. The court adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. The witnesses were told to remain, and the commission in Lunacy, Drs. King and Drewry, who are appointed by the court today, spent the remainder of the day in examining them more closely along professional and medical lines. This was in the nature of an executive session, and the witnesses were told they would talk more freely and unreservedly without the presence of the public, the lawyers or the newspaper men. A record of the proceedings is being made, and the public will be admitted to this record will be open to public inspection. No decision will be made public until to-morrow in open court. Three lines of action are open to the commissioner. It may declare the prisoner sane, it may declare him insane, or it may be asked that he be removed to an asylum for further investigation and study. It is the general belief of the public in Salem that the last course will be taken.

One of the significant features of the session to-day was a direct statement by Dr. R. Minor Willey, one of the best known practicing physicians in Roanoke county and Southwest Virginia, that he considered Ralnes sane. Dr. Willey is the jail physician and has had numerous occasions to study the prisoner since his incarceration in the Salem jail.

Dr. R. M. Willey was the first witness put on the stand by Mr. Klime, Commonwealth's attorney. He has seen Raines twelve times since February 19, while the prisoner has been confined in the county jail. Dr. Wiley is the jail physician. In reply to a direct question from Mr. Kline, Dr. Wiley

William H. Hart, who testified Saturday afternoon, was recalled, and said it was between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon when he saw Bailey on the Afternoon when he saw flames on the Tuesday preceding the killing of Miss Chambers. Viney Scales, colored, told of seeing the two girl teachers on their way to the schoolhouse the morning of the killing, of hearing the shots fired and seeing Raines run away. Asked why she ran, she said it was because she "feared he might shoot."

G. W. Tyree, the next witness, helped measure the distance from Mr. Vogenthaler's gate to the place the killing occurred, a distance of 809 feet. He found two cartridges lying in the talked on the subject of burning. Then the school investigation came up and was discussed. "Raines did not speak very well of Judge Berkeley," said the witness. "Raines hinted that he knew something about Miss Chambers that he was going to tell."

Mrs. C. E. Day, who lives seventy-five yards from Raines, was the next witness. At one time she lived in Raines's house four months. She and Mrs. Raines had a little trouble once about a school teacher, and since then she and Mrs. Raines had not spoken. There has never been any trouble between Mrs. Day and Mr. Raines. She saw Raines after the shooting going from where he shot Miss Chambers towards her husband. He walked hurriedly a few minutes later the child riedly. A few minutes later the children of Giles LaPrade told Mrs. Day that Raines was shooting at her husband. Then she spoke to him. He replied, "No, I haven't hurt him. Do you want one?"

"One what?" asked Mrs. Day.

"A pill," said Raines.
"No indeed, Mr. Raines, I don't want one," she answered.
Raines went on and Mrs. Day stopped at her own gate. Later Raines came back and said he had been over to the schoolhouse and tried to reason with Miss Chambers, but she wouldn't be reasoned with, so he shot her. "She's dead now," he added. He said he had "fixed things now." He accused Mrs. Day of getting up evidence to the school investigation, and she

In the school investigation, and denied it. "They have run me crazy," Raines told her. Then he went and got his horse and rode off rapidly toward Salem.

It was said last night at the City Jail that the condition of Bronaugh Trice, a telegraph operator, confined in the prison hospital, who attempted suicide by swallowing a small quantity of iodine, was better and

Trice was given a heavy sentence in Police Court several days ago on a charge of being drunk. He recovered from his spree in jail, and as a result became ill, so that it was necessary to place him in the hospital. He shared the bed with the other

ard. He obtained the bottle from the steward and with the excuse that he wanted to relieve the pain of numerous sprains and bruises he received while on his jamboree. He probably would have accomplished his purpose if a fellow-prisoner had not knocked the bottle from his mouth.

Bristol, Va., March 4.—News was received here to-night of a sensational tragedy at Whitehorn, a country village in Hawkins county, Tenn. John West, a farmer, shot

West. The trouble started between her husband and West, and Mrs. Lawson was killed by a heavy charge of shot when she jumped between them to prevent West from killing her husband.

When Mrs. Lawson had fallen West then fired the contents of the remaining barrel of Perlm.

The merchant, in the encounter, drew a knife and made two or three shots, one taking effect in Hamilton's left breast. The wounded man was rushed to a hospital at Salisbury, where he was immediately placed under the care of the surgeons.
